This video shows you how to open the hood in your 1998 Porsche Boxster. Popping the hood on your Boxster is a two step process, you need to release the hood latch inside your Boxster and then you need to release the safety latch under your hood in the front of your Boxster. The video above shows you the location of both hood latches.

The thread confirmed that in the case of the Porsche 997, plus 987 Boxster and Cayman, the emergency bonnet release is located in the left-hand front wing, and access is gained by removing the liner and reaching in. It included a very clear photo showing the location of the release, which I've taken the liberty of borrowing:

Ok there is another way, but it isn't easy. This is a dealer secret that allows the Porsche dealer to do their magic. On the passengers side up under the car, almost up into the area of the back of the headlight is an emergency hood release. You have to feel for it, because most of them are placed just out of sight for security.
